Third Sunday of Ordinary Time
23 January 2022

Next Sunday: 4th Sunday of Ordinary Time - Year of Luke (C)

Dear Friends and Parishioners,

This Sunday at Mass we experience the joy of hearing the opening sermon of Jesus' ministry, which he gives in the synagogue at Nazareth: he takes the hope-filled text of the prophet Isaiah and makes it his own. Jesus has come to bring good news to the poor, and to proclaim the Lord's year of favour.

Our Holy Father Pope Francis, in the synodal journey he proposes, is proclaiming a similar hope-filled experience to us, as he invites us to become a more "listening Church" and to enjoy "reciprocal listening", founded on "horizontal [i.e. fraternal, equal] relationships", reflecting the grace of our shared baptismal priesthood and dignity....more on all this soon! The underlying principle is that each one of us has something to share which contributes to the upbuilding and completion of the other and of the Church. This is quite challenging stuff - for me at least! - but of course, so is the homily of Jesus in the Nazareth synagogue! Our own Bishop's Synod Task Group will be inviting us in the near future to participate in the listening phase of the synodal journey.

Father Sebastian invites us to a concert of Polish Carols and Music this Sunday 23 January at 2.30pm in St Mary's, Forebank. All welcome.

We're generally good at appealing for volunteers in the Church! But, looking at the bible, it seems that when God wanted to get a job done, he did not so often do that, but rather he approached individuals directly or through his messengers! He chose people. Mary was chosen, Peter, Andrew and the rest were all chosen by Jesus. In the Old Testament too, God chose leaders: Abraham, Joseph, Moses, Joshua, David, and Ezra and Nehemiah.

I mention the last two because they feature in the reading we hear this Sunday. The literature attributed to this pair grew out of a time when the Israelites were without an earthly king and were learning, once again, to rely solely on God for guidance and inspiration. During those years of Persian domination, after Cyrus conquered Babylon, Ezra the priest-scribe and Nehemiah the governor of Judah engineered a faith-forming enterprise to reconstruct not only the physical and political infrastructure of their homeland but also its wounded faith and struggling spirituality. The task which faced them, and to which they brought leadership, inspiration and wisdom was mighty indeed. Ezra and Nehemiah were God's gift to his people for that time.

In the second reading this Sunday we hear that God has designated or appointed gifts to his Church and the Scriptures outline the people who are given to the Church. These (and all leaders whom God gives) have a mighty vocation—to convey, interpret and inspire with a wisdom that comes from above. It is surely significant that our society is sometimes referred to as 'post-modern', that is, we are not very sure what we are or where we are, we just know we have passed beyond what we had and where we were. So we do need leaders. The role of the leader will include the tasks of defining reality and interpreting truth and wisdom to a new generation. Think of what our Holy Father Pope Francis is doing for and proposing to the Church at this time, inviting us all to a renewed shared responsibility for the Church we have inherited, and bringing to fruition the great dreams of the Second Vatican Council.

God in scripture often calls the young, and he copes with their youth! How did God manage with David (who was the youngest son), and Mary, with the immature Peter and the rest? Our Scriptures and tradition tell the story of a God who chose people who could hold the word and the vision before the eyes, ears and hands of the people, until they were able, gradually and with confidence to take it in their own hands and lives. The prophet Joel sings of old men dreaming dreams and young men having visions.

As Nehemiah relates in this Sunday's reading, the people had assembled at the Water Gate; present to hear Ezra proclaim God's word in their hearing were men, women and children old enough to understand. God's word that day consisted of the Torah of the Old Testament [literally translated this means teachings or instructions]. Accepting the word as set before them that day, with all its blessings and challenges, the people responded with one voice: Amen! Amen!

In our second reading, Paul's first letter to the Church in Corinth presupposes a gathering of believers: men, women and children old enough to understand. This letter brings the wisdom and insights, teaching and preaching of the leader who had introduced them to Christ. Again, in the Gospel, the same kind of gathering listens to Jesus, the leader whom God has given.

And last, but not least, we gather in our churches here: men, women and children old enough to understand. We too are blessed and challenged by God's word. Shall we, like Ezra and the Israelites, find in the word of God a cause that will rouse our faith and a plan that will inspire us? Shall we, like Paul's congregation, hear the word and know that we are uniquely blessed, capable of being salt, light, guidance and inspiration to our times?

It will be great to have tea and coffee reinstated after Sunday morning Mass when we are able. If you would be willing to help with this once we are allowed to do so, please let me know.
